

Diagnostic Imaging Services Information for Patients

Your physician has ordered an imaging study as part of your medical care. This order is based on your provider's clinical judgement and the medical information available at the time of the referral.

You have the right to choose where your imaging is performed. If additional scans are needed later in your treatment, having scans performed at the same location can help maintain consistency and make it easier to compare results over time.

The provider list below is offered as a resource for patients and may not include every imaging provider in the area. It is not intended to recommend, endorse, rank, or direct you to any specific imaging provider. Choosing a different imaging provider will not affect your ongoing treatment with your physician.

Before scheduling or receiving imaging services, you should contact your health insurance plan to confirm whether the facility you choose is covered. Your insurance plan can tell you whether prior authorization is required, whether the facility is in-network, and whether any coverage limitations or out-of-pocket costs may apply.
